WHIG NOMINATION.

FOR DELEGATE TO CONVENTION

JAMES COLLINS

OF IOWA COUNTY.

THE COMING ELECTION.

WE very much fear our Whig friends are not sufficiently alive to the importance of the approaching Fall Election. Although there has been a warm and enthusiastic response to our nomination for Delegate, there seems to us to be a suspicious and want of energy among the Whigs for efficient action, without which the campaign may terminate with us in a disastrous defeat. This should never be. Unworn, sleepless vigilance alone will give us victory; and the most untiring efforts are required to marshal our forces in invincible array. Every county, village, town, and school district should be organized. Meetings of our friends should frequently be called, and all proper efforts made to produce a thorough and efficient organization.

The political contest this fall presents many peculiar phases. On the one hand, we have a candidate inviting our suffrages, who predicates his claims on the ground of his strict pledges to the destructive measures of Loco-focoism, hideous in all its deformities and ultrasim—opposed to the broad and liberal principles of internal improvements—foolishly stringent in creating public institutions, without which the National currency cannot be otherwise than restricted and deranged; (and that too after having sold one of the chief officers of one of the most worthless of such institutions)—opposed to a fair and equitable protection of American labor—favorable to the "fierce democra" that rose in rebellion under Don, that fostered and promulgated principles deadly antagonistic to a good state of law and order—devolving, disorganizing and revolutionary in the extreme—the petted protege of a corrupt and designing clique, whose "known rule of warfare is an indiscriminate hostility to everything and every man who ever saw Milwaukee, and whose election, which, if brought about, will be the greatest curse, not only upon this city and county, but the Territory at large, that can possibly befall us for a century.

On the other hand, we have a candidate fully entitled to our confidence and suffrage. In him we shall find a firm, unflinching champion of internal improvements, so essentially requisite in a new Territory like ours—one upon whom violent party measures, without regard to public good, cannot claim a blind, infatuated adherence—a delegate whose legislative acts will be directed for the general good, and all the varied interests of the whole Territory—one friendly to a full and adequate encouragement of domestic manufacture and National industry—a man of most excellent judgement, of superior talents, and acknowledged ability, and one who will represent Wisconsin in Congress with honor to himself, and beneficial advantage to the Territory.

Independent of party measures, other and paramount considerations will be thrown into the scale of the coming canvass. The question will not be who can make the greatest pretensions to exclusive democracy and the ultra policy of party—who can talk loudest, and bawl most vociferously about "democratic liberty," "federalism," "hard money," "free trade," &c., &c., but what measures are destined to be conducive to the public interest, and what man will best serve the true interests of the Territory in Congress. A corrupt clique of designing demagogues, congregated in this city, banded together in the form of a Regency, which has claimed to do all the thinking, and to keep exclusive control as well of the consciences as the political action of a large portion of the voters of the city and country—this identical cabal, which, to use the just expression of a very gentlemanly and talented democrat of Milwaukee, at a certain democratic meeting, "centered and circled around" the office of a high public functionary, standing in connection with the government—this hitherto invincible and potent Milwaukee Regency, which has claimed the power to stigmatize the independent portion of the democratic party (who had the manhood to spurn alike their collar and dictation, and act as become American freemen,) as "Calatravians," and repudiate them from their party organization, and political standing—this Regency, we say, had its day, and passed from the period of its influence and potency. The people of all parties, and the independent portion of the democratic party, will think and act for themselves—and that regardless of the Regency cry of "shoot the disorders!"

In what constitutes MORAN L. MARTIN's claims to the suffrages of the people of the Territory for the Delegacy? Although a long resident among them, our friends point to any one act of his of a public nature worthy of his elevation to such a responsible station? Where are the evidences of his superior talent or abilities which should characterize the representative of so great a Territory?—Where, we repeat, are the evidences? Echo answers—"where!"

Turn from this picture to another, brighter and more vivid:—come back through the vista of by-gone years—back through the dim period of departed time—when the smoke of the settler's cabin went up from the scattered and isolated settlements of these wilderness solitudes. Mark the thrilling and bloody period when through our vast forests and over our trackless prairies, innumerable savage hordes roved in hostile array—when the peaceful dwellings of the inoffensive pioneer were surrounded in the dead hour of night—their walls wrapped in fire and smoke, and their defenseless occupants shockingly and inhumanely murdered by the light of the flames, or carried into a ruthless captivity, worse than death itself—rever to the time when universal terror and alarm prevailed over the entire extent of the Northwestern frontier, and the defenseless inhabitants in those hours of peril called on God for aid to shield them from midnight murder, and the red hand of Indian savagery. Who among the gallant volunteers that turned out to stay the march of the savage hordes and protect the isolated household from semi-savage barbarity, was more prominent than JAMES COLLINS? Who stood more firm amid the ranks of that brave volunteer band—who stood more true to the interests, and fought more valiantly in defense of the northwestern frontier?

And he it is, who now comes before the people of that country for their countenance and suffrage to elect him to the high dignity of representing them in the councils of the Nation! It is true, many years have elapsed since that thrilling period. When raged fierce, then the red havoc of war, and where murder and bloodshed spotted the green turf of the prairie, all now is peace, and beautiful farmhouses, cities and villages are dotted the plain with the cheering evidences of civilization; but the same localities are there, and many of the old border inhabitants yet survive to tell of the dark and gloomy days of the Black Hawk war, and they well remember the brave hearts and the strong arms of those who turned out to protect them and their firesides from the Indian tomahawk and scalping knife. The name of JAMES COLLINS stands prominently on the bright scroll of that gallant band—for his noble services, enshrined in the hearts of many of the early pioneers, he will receive their unanimous and undivided support for the delegation. No Regency—no clique—no centralized direction will force them to abandon one of their brave defenders, and they will most cordially contribute their votes and influence to elevate him to the post for which he has been nominated.

THIS COULEST IMPUDENCE EVER KNOWN!—For two or three days past, a white-livered, slab-sided, bandy-legged, knock-kneed, goggle-eyed, feather-headed creature, resembling outwardly in some particulars, (and few at that,) the features of a man, and who styled himself W. W. Wright, has been prowling around this city engaged in peddling what he called "marking type"—thin pieces of tin and brass, cut square, and through the centre of which were cut interstices, resembling in some respects letters of the alphabet. Emboldened with some little success he met with in the sale of his commodity, he called at the house of one of our merchants, and in fact one of our most respectable citizens, and offered to sell his wares to the different members of the family. The lady of the house declined buying any and he went off. Presently he returned again and renewed his entreaties to dispose of his letters. Again was he told that the articles were not wanted. He again retired from the house, and incensed at his want of success in effecting a sale, sat down and penned a most abusive and insulting letter to the lady, sent it, and then left in the boat on Wednesday evening for Chicago, before, however, the letter had reached its destination.

When the missive came to hand, efforts were made to find the gentlemanly author, but he had sloped, and thus eluded what he so richly merited, and most assuredly would have got—a rich payment with double interest, by means of a paw-hide. As he has gone to Chicago with his traps, and as he so successfully avoided justice in this city, we have thought it our duty to ask our Chicago brethren to pass him round by way of a complimentary notice, in the hopes that they may succeed in directing the wayward steps of the youth back to this region again—Cowbides and boos would laugh at his re-appearance thisburgh.

He may be readily known by the description given of him at the commencement of this article. Oblige us by passing him around, gentlemen of the Journal and News.

CAmong the distinguished men that have visited our city quite recently, we see recorded on the books of the Milwaukee House, the name of R. C. Schaeck, of Dayton, Ohio. We learn that Mr. S. with his family has visited Iowa, where he has relations. On his return home, he took the route through Galena to Madison, and thence to this place. He arrived here late on the evening of the 6th, and the same evening took boat for Chicago—there to remain a day or two, and return with Saturday's boat.

Mr. Schaeck is a distinguished and highly talented Member of Congress. On all questions coming before Congress, touching the interest and prosperity of this section, he has been one of its best friends. He was heard to say to a friend, during his short stay among us, that he was now perfectly satisfied with all he had done in Congress for this region, and would return with an impression that too much could not be done. We wish all our distinguished and talented public men would visit this section, for we are satisfied they would say that too little has been done for this great and growing country.

DAUGUEREOYPE GALLERY.—By reference to an advertisement in another column, it will be seen that the Daugereotype Art Union and Photographic Association have opened rooms in Austin's brick block, and that they will be prepared to execute all orders for miniatures by Monday next.—The specimens shown by the gentlemen of this association evince an ability and cleverness of execution which is very creditable to them. A call at their room, and an examination of their specimens will satisfy all that they are no bunglers at their art, and that they richly deserve the public patronage.

In France, crime increase with the march of civilization and knowledge, as appears by the official report of the French criminal records of 1844. Crimes have multiplied among the middle and upper classes. Poisoning with arsenic was not so common in the worst periods before the Revolution than it is now throughout France. Reports have been made by able inquirers—Vivien and Corneille—to the Chamber of Deputies and to the Institute, on the sale of poisons, with a view to a more effective legislation and police.

JAMES A. McNOTT, the great repudiator, is a candidate for the U. S. Senate, in Mississippi, and has signified his intention of addressing the people at sixty-eight different places.

ITHE Albany papers speak highly of the new steamer Rip Van Winkle. She is now fully completed. A trial was made of her speed on Saturday afternoon, in which she performed admirably, running where there was a sufficient depth of water to admit of quick work, twenty miles an hour.

THE AMERICAN Legionnaire in the Gulf of Mexico.—There is now in the Gulf and on the way there a force of 200 guns from the least in directiveness to the Paixhans, the powers of which have never been fully tested on this side of the Atlantic.

ITHE insurance offices of New York have advanced their rates on dwelling houses 12½ per cent, and on stoves 40 per cent since the fire.

IDon't forget Mr. Gray's Lecture to-night at the Unitarian Church.

THE New Orleans Picayune of the 15th ult. says: "Notwithstanding the continued hot weather, the health of the city continues good. We hear of no sickness of consequence."

HELTH OF NEW YORK.—The bill of mortality for the last week, says the Herald of the 29th, shows a great improvement over the previous one. Last week the deaths numbered 278.

THE first division of the Vermont and Massachusetts Railroad was let to contractors on Wednesday morning, on favorable terms for the Company, and the work will soon be commenced. The portion of the work which has been let is twenty-seven miles, from Fitchburg, Mass., to Athol, Mass., and for this there are about thirty contractors, mostly from the N. Y. Erie Canal, and the Croton Water Work.

TEMPERANCE AMONG THE CHEROKEES.—There was a great Temperance gathering in the Flint District, Cherokee nation, on the 22d of May. The exercises were opened and closed with prayer. The addresses were short; but full of temperance spirit;—hymns were sung both in Cherokee and English, and all seemed to feel that it was good for them to be there. At the close of the meeting, seventy two names were added to the temperance list. Flint district has lately been the theatre of more drunken outrages than any other part of the Cherokee nation. A capital anecdote was related by one of the speakers, which we presume is original, at any rate, it is new to us:—

A circumstance happened in one of the towns of Arkansas. A man had been drinking until a late hour in the night, before he started for home. Honest folks had long been in bed, and the houses were all shut and dark. The liquor he had taken was too much for him; he did not know where to go. He at last staggered into an empty wagon shed, and fell upon the ground. For a long time he lay in the unconsciousness of drunken sleep, and undoubtedly would have frozen, (for the snow on the ground showed the night to be very cold), had not others less insensible than himself been around him. This shed was a favorite rendezvous for the hogs, which were out when the newcomer arrived, but soon returned to their bed. In the utmost kindness, and with the truest hospitality, they gave their biped companion the middle of the bed; some lying on either side of him, and others acting the part of a quilt. Their warmth prevented him from being injured by his exposure. Toward morning he awoke, finding himself comfortable, in blissful ignorance of his whereabouts, he supposed himself enjoying the accommodations of a tavern, in company with other gentlemen. He reached out his hand and catching hold of the stiff bristles of a hog, exclaimed, "Why master, when did you shave last?"

THRILLING situation.—Narrow escape of about one hundred persons.—We do not remember to have heard for a long time the particulars of a more exciting and thrilling escape from death, of one hundred persons, than occurred on Monday night last. We have mentioned the severe storm of rain, lightning and thunder which occurred on that night. The steamer Louis McLane, one of the passenger packets running to Brownsville, had left the city that evening on her way up, with over 80 passengers, besides the crew and others, and had got within a short distance of Williamsport, when a hurricane struck her broadside, in the middle of the river.—Catching the boat with a tremendous force it instantly keeled her over, but providentially at that place the water was shallow, and instead of capsizing wholly, the weight of the boat came down on the larboard gun, which struck the bottom and preventing her from careening over entirely.—Let any one imagine the horror of the scene; the lightning was flashing on every side, the rain pouring down, and the boat in nearly destroyed, one chimney overboard, the other on the roof, the crowd of passengers who had jumped from their berths hurled to one side of the cabin in a mass, the smashing of every decanter, tumblers, plate, cup, &c. in the bar and pantry, the crash of the stoves in the cabin and cook house against the side, the whizzing of the steam and revolutions of the engines, the shrill shrieks and cries of the women and children, the hoarse calls of the men, the shouts and orders of the officers, all rising together as if in concert with the wild tempest as it rushed by, the lightning as it glared, and the rain as it fell, and we may form some conception of the awfulness of the occurrence. It is frightful to think of it.

The boat soon righted, and the officers were enabled to get her to Brownsville.—The captain, E. Bennett, was in the pilot-house at the time, and acted with heroic promptness. One of the engineers, we are informed, fled from his post, but the other stood firm, and by great exertion, stopped the engine he was at, and then managed to get to the other and stop it also. None of the passengers were much injured, though many of them were somewhat bruised. The McLane is so much injured that it is thought several weeks will be required to repair her.

THE Cry is still for DAUGUEREOYPE.
